

Peer Review: Response, with Set Questions

Name of Writer:

Name of Reviewer:

Step One

Bring your paper up on your screen and write down three specific questions that you have, at the moment, about your paper. WRITE THEM HERE.

Step Two

Have your reader answer the following questions:

- What is, in your own words, my thesis?

- What is, in your own words, are my subtopics?

- What was, in your mind, the strongest point I made and why?

- What was, in your mind, a place where I could work a bit more on my essay and why?

Step Three

When Done: Look at these questions and talk through your paper. The use of these questions is optional, but if you have the time, then you SHOULD use them.

- What were some things that confused you about my writing? Where did you get lost?
- Where is a place where I need to cut or elaborate—can you point to those specific places?
- Do you notice any patterns of error? Am I having problems with verb tense, commas, or run-on sentences?
- Key Question: What is, for you as a reader, the MOST IMPORTANT thing that I should do next with my paper?